

Case Study PR Campaign Travel & Tourism

“Grandtravel” Consumer Survey, Satellite Media Tour & Contest

With Holly Robinson Peete

The Objectives

- To develop, promote, market and sell Anaheim as a premier visitor destination, benefiting the economic vitality of the local community.
- To announce the research findings of a consumer survey conducted by Visit Anaheim and draw attention to their “Grandtravel” contest where the winner would win an Anaheim vacation, including hotel and entertainment for a family of four, plus two grandparents.

Strategies and Tactics

- The Celebrity Source identified Holly Robinson Peete as the ideal spokesperson for this campaign, in addition to engaging Holly's mother Dolores Robinson, who often travels with Holly, her husband, NFL veteran quarterback Rodney Peete, and their four children.
- Visit Anaheim polled a sample of 1,000 Americans to determine interest in multigenerational travel.
- A Satellite Media Tour was conducted with Holly Robinson Peete to announce the results of the Survey and to draw attention to the "Grandtravel" contest on Visit Anaheim's website.
- Holly Robinson Peete posted the contest information on her social media platforms which were further amplified by Visit Anaheim.

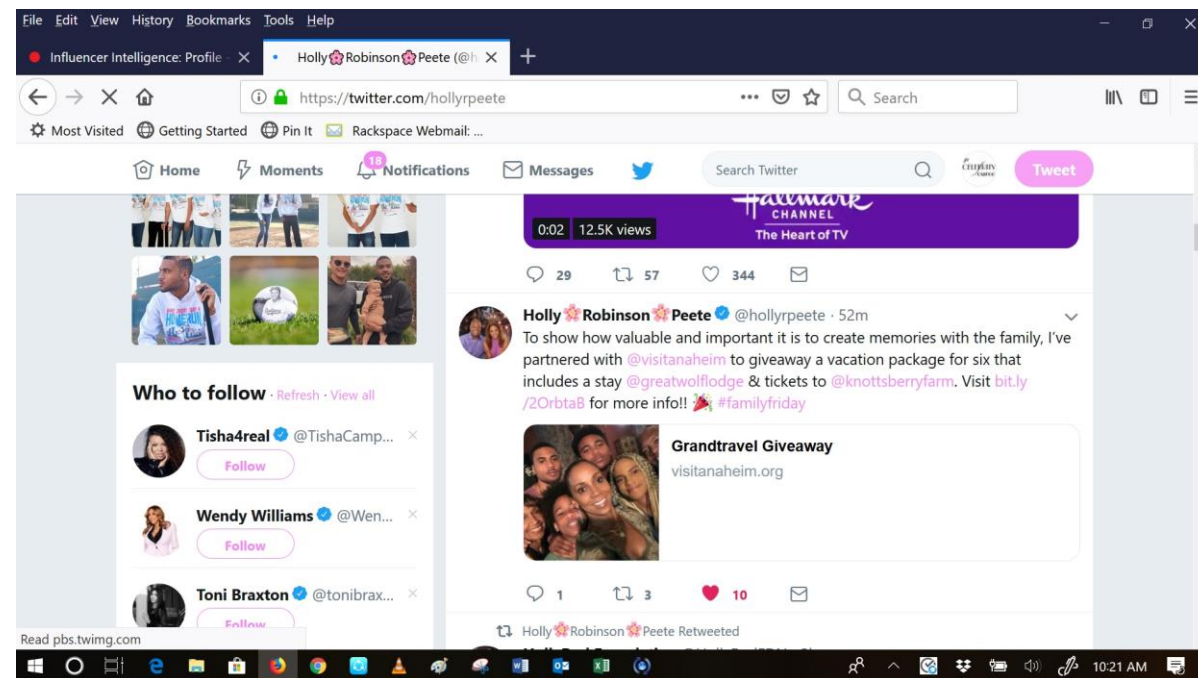

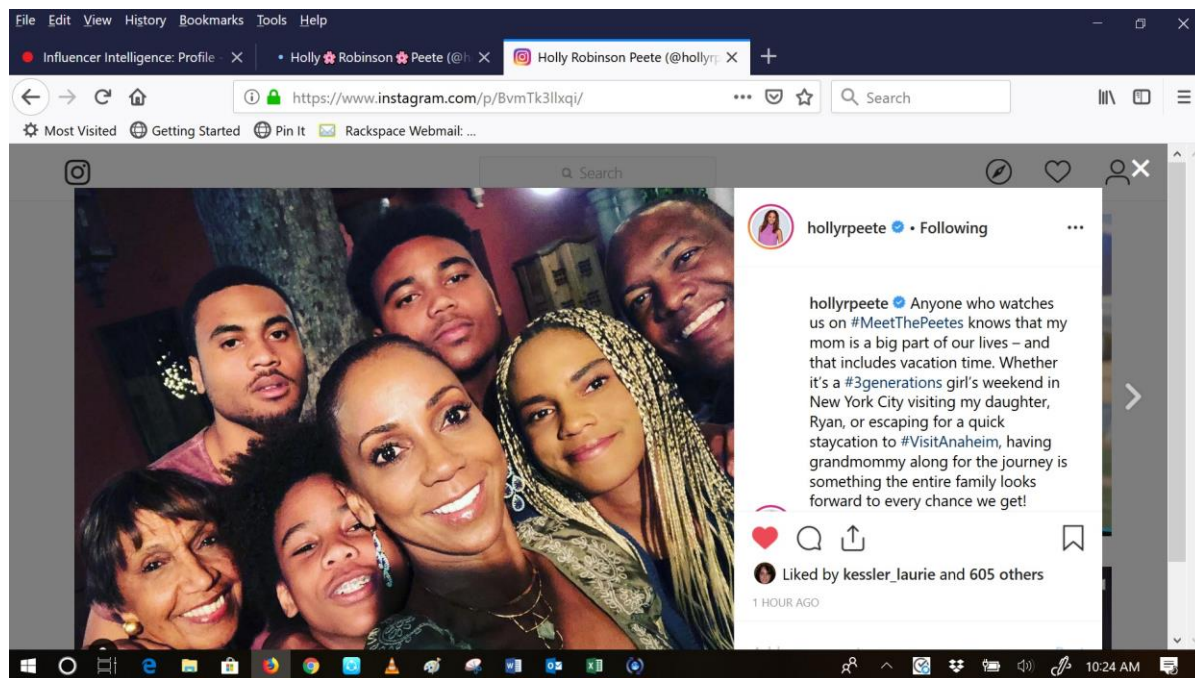

Survey Findings

- Multigenerational vacations are top-of-mind with travelers when it comes to reliving memories, while also creating new ones, with the next generation.
- Millennial respondents (aged 25-34) lead the category when it comes to wanting more multigenerational trips, coming in at a whopping 83 percent.
- Two thirds (66 percent) of respondents have traveled with three or more generations of their family, making vacations with grandparents, their adult children, and grandchildren, a travel trend with no signs of slowing down.

- The majority (56 percent) “strongly agree” that multigenerational trips are more special when visiting somewhere their parents or grandparents have been before and 53 percent report being “very happy” when they take trips to places they’ve previously been with their parents or children.
- Top benefits of traveling with three generations are:
 - Allows bonding time/memories to be built between grandparents and grandchildren (67 percent)
 - Spending more quality time together (65 percent)
 - Additionally, having Grandpa and Grandma around means Mom and Dad can escape to check out the local nightlife or less kid-friendly attractions, knowing the kids are in great hands

Objectives Achieved !

“Anyone who watches us on ‘Meet the Peetes’ knows that my mom is a big part of our lives – and that includes vacation time,” said Robinson Peete. “Whether it’s a girls weekend in New York City visiting my daughter, Ryan, or escaping for a quick staycation to somewhere fun like Anaheim, having grandma along for the journey is something the entire family looks forward to every chance we get.”

--Holly Robinson Peete

“Getting to spend time with your grandkids is always special, but being able to vacation with them is truly a treat,” said Dolores Robinson, Holly Robinson Peete’s mom. “My grandkids affectionally call me everything from ‘Gorgeous’ to ‘G-Money.’ It’s because we’ve carved out time to create memories that we have such a close bond. Visit Anaheim’s survey is proof that families love to travel with grandparents. And I love that they’re giving a family a chance to win a vacation to Anaheim – including spots for Grandma and Grandpa. How fun!”

--Dolores Robinson

“Thank you SO much for sticking with us through this crazy process. You are true partners and I’m so grateful for all your hard work.”
